Research methodology workshop on systematic reviews and meta-analysis (Research Methodology)

Organized By
Campbell Collaboration in Association with SIHS and STLRC

For FoHS Faculty Members

Date: 21st- 23rd December 2020

About this Online Conference

Objectives: The aim of this conference is to introduce systematic review methodology and Evidence and Gap Map (EGM). The course will use a combination of lectures, group work and practical sessions to introduce the following topics:

- Introduction to systematic reviews and Evidence and Gap Maps (EGM): Overview lecture that introduces key concepts and examples
- Developing the review question
- Literature searching: ^[1]_[2]^[3]_[4]

- Study selection/data extraction
- Quality assessment & critical appraisal of primary studies and systematic reviews
- Introduction to meta-analysis: Overview lecture that introduces key concepts and examples
- Reporting standards and guidelines for systematic reviews
- How to develop a Campbell Title Registration Form (TRF) for a systematic review and EGM

Methods: This webinar will spread across 3-days and includes lectures, discussion, group and computer exercises. The computer exercises will be done offline and submitted to asaran@campbellcollaboration before the start of the next day.

Participants should have individual laptops and should download Campbell title registration forms for systematic reviews and EGMs.

12:30-12:45 pm	Certificates

Report of the Webinar

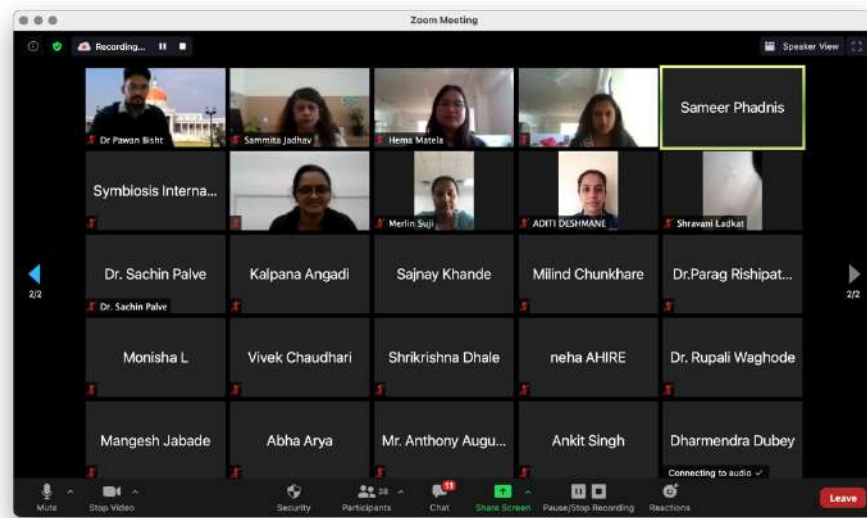

The 3-day online workshop was organized by Symbiosis Institute of Health Sciences (SIHS) in collaboration with Campbell group of South Asia. The programme was initiated with a talk from Dr Howard White, CEO of Campbell Group on the importance of systematic reviews and meta-analysis. The workshop had both lectures and hands-on sessions that spanned over three days. On the first day the workshop set the stage with an in-depth overview of the process of systematic reviews and evidence gap maps. Dr Ashrita Saran and Dr Howard White gradually provided insights to the process of preparing the reviews and evidence gap maps. Participants were given time to identify an area to work on and develop either a systematic review or a evidence gap map. The title registration forms (TRF) were provided by the team Campbell and participants were taken through the process of filling the form.

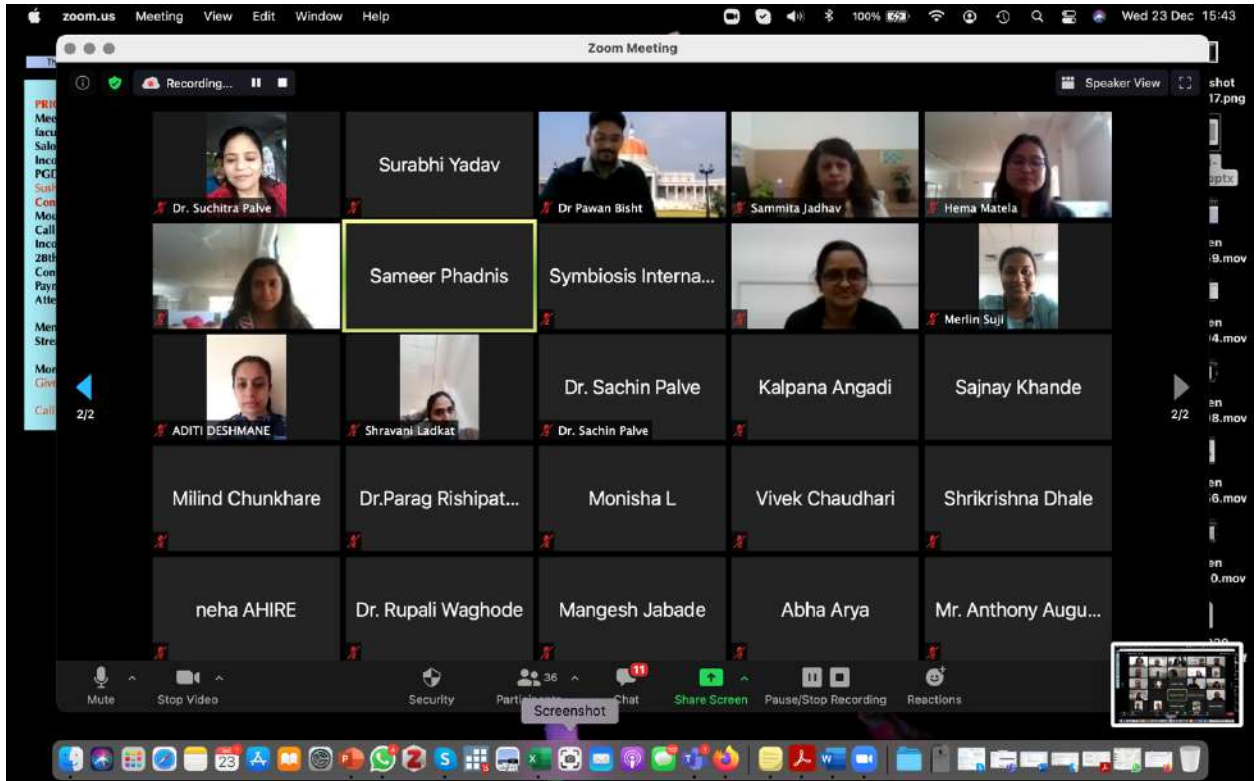

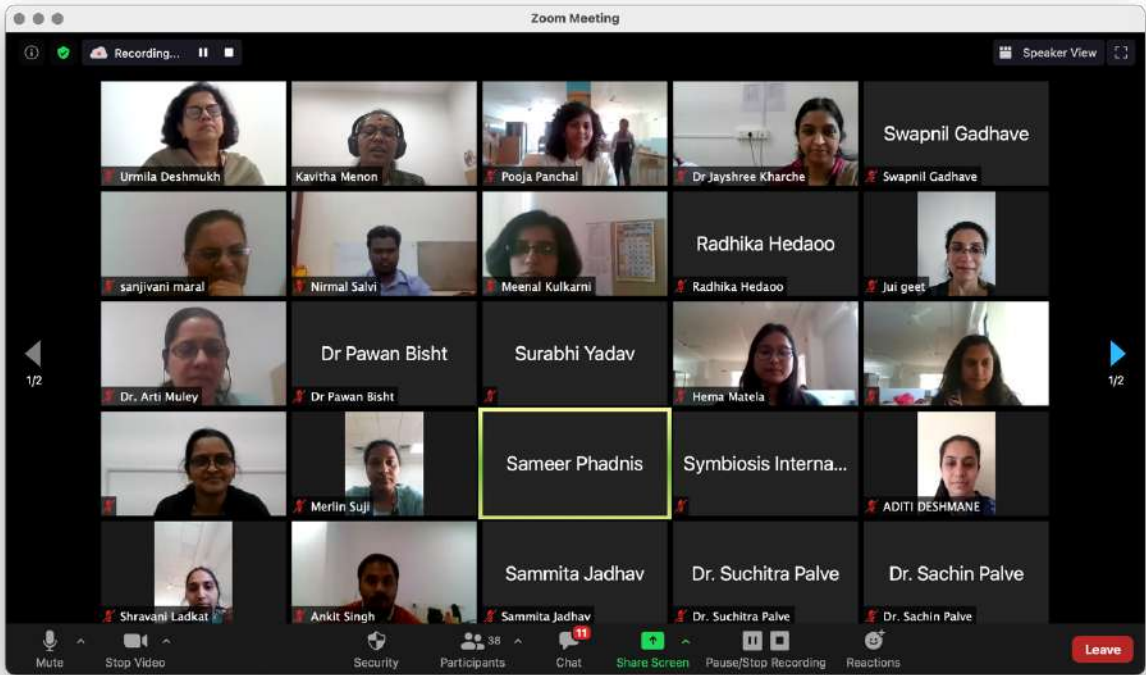

Participants were grouped based on their interest initially to seven to eight groups. About 7 groups tentatively filled in the TRF that spanned over seven different fields in health sciences. The TRF were discussed with the team and guidance were provided by the Campbell team. Handholding to write the TRF was completed as a part of the 3-day workshop. The seven groups included the following:

1. Nutrition and Agriculture
2. Nutrition and micronutrient deficiencies
3. Physical activity intervention group.
4. Maternal and child health group
5. Child health group
6. Home healthcare for elderly group
7. Public health finance group.

The groups will work further on the TRF and further discussions are planned in the coming days.

Dear All:

Greetings!

Happy to inform you all regarding the upcoming 3-day workshop (FDP) on Systematic Reviews and Meta-analysis jointly organized by SIHS-STLRC in association with the renowned group - Campbell Collaboration - from 21st-23rd December 2020.

The objective of the workshop is to support faculty members to comprehend the research process of developing systematic reviews and meta-analysis and evidence gap maps- integral to the practice of evidence-based medicine. The present workshop will be the first step to understand the overall process and to register faculty members for developing a systematic review. A second workshop for developing a proposal and writing the review will be organized at a later stage. Campbell collaboration will handhold the registered faculty members in developing reviews and support with the publication of the same. The participants of the workshop may use the opportunity for developing a research publication, develop an overall understanding of the process of evidence synthesis and evidence gap maps.

The programme exclusively organized for faculty members of FoHS and we request you to depute interested faculty members who could potentially develop a review at the end of the workshops. Please find attached the schedule of the programme. The link for the programme and registration will be shared sooner.

Thanking you all

Warm regards,
Kavitha
